CARROLL COUNTY DEMOCRAT

VOL. 10.—NO 2. HUNTINGDON TENN., FRIDAY, JANUARY 29, 1897. $1.00 PER YEAR

Season in Boston.

The grand lodge of Royal Arch Masons of Massachusetts met within the week. There are 60 lodges in the state and about 20 delegates from each lodge. The meeting was a memorable event, for it was the occasion of the presentation to Gen. B. F. Thomas of Boston, a P. G. H. P., of a magnificent loving cup, the gift of the Royal Arch Masons of the state, who are attending Judge Thomas' library.

Tragedy-Grief.

A. J. Cook, of Cook's Mill, Ky., and Miss Ella Gant, of the same place, eloped, were married in Nashville, Tenn., and returned to their home in time to attend the burial of the bride's mother. She was thrown from a buggy and killed. The shock was too much for the young man. Miss Ella's mother was buried in the morning and her daughter without a tear, followed the remains to the grave.

Death Caused Grief.

A. F. Beasley has purchased of J. J. Hall the Fitzhugh property on Fitzhugh street.

A Peaceful Death.

David Alsup, an old and respected citizen of Nashville, died at the family residence, 1108 Cedar street, Wednesday morning, January 20th. The funeral took place from the residence Thursday morning at 10 o'clock. Interment private. This closes a long and useful life. Mr. Alsup was a blood patriot and in ante-bellum days engaged to death. Mr. Alsup was a Mason of high degree.

Death Caused Grief.

The youth caused great pain to the Rev. A. F. Ailstock was drowned in the Cumberland river at Nashville on Wednesday, January 20th. He was 19 years old and an A student and in the Junior class at the Vanderbilt University. He was a member of the Methodist church and beloved by all. His body was found on Thursday and carried to Dyersburg, Tenn., for interment.

Miss Ella Can Read.

Miss Ella Gant, who eloped with A. J. Cook, of Cook's Mill, Ky., and married in Nashville, Tenn., on the 13th inst., returned to her home in Kentucky, and on the 14th her mother was buried. Miss Ella could not read the letter announcing the death of her mother, and when she received it she could not read it, but handed it to her husband, who read it to her. Her grief was pitiful to see.

Cricket-Style.

Mr. J. D. Gardner and Miss Mary Lee Hall were married at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. Thomas Hall, on Cedar street, Wednesday afternoon. They left immediately after the ceremony for Memphis, Mr. and Mrs. Gardner will live at Hollow Rock, and were accompanied to the depot by a host of friends, who showered them with rice. The happy couple are well known and have a host of friends who wish them much success in the voyage of matrimony.—Paris (Tenn.) Post-Intelligencer.

Jesse Lawrence Dead.

The Chattanooga Commercial says: Jesse Lawrence, a well known and widespread family of that name, died last night of the last climate of consumption. He had been sick for a long time and for many days his life could be traced by the hour. He was a native of Tennessee, and was a resident of Chattanooga for many years. He was a man of wife and six children. He was an industrious man and was highly respected in his community and by his fellow men. His death is a sad blow to his family, and the sympathy of the community goes out to the bereaved. The funeral and burial of the deceased will take place from the residence on Cameron Hill this afternoon at 2 o'clock, and the remains will be interred in Forest Hill cemetery.

Burglars' Work.

Thursday night's burglary work of a literary kind. Several stores were burglarized and about $25 worth of goods taken. Among the stores entered were J. W. Lee's, from door by means of a chisel and forcing the bolt back. Mr. Lee's loss was small, going from the window to the counter. Mr. Lee's safe was not disturbed by the burglars and probably contained no money. Entrance was also effected at Mr. Lee's residence, but nothing was taken. Mr. Lee's loss will be covered by insurance. Entrance was also effected at Mr. Lee's residence, but nothing was taken. Mr. Lee's loss will be covered by insurance. TALMAGE'S SERMON.

A Shooting in the Dungeons Among Lost at the Crucifix.

No Power by Heaven or on Earth or the Waters Under the Earth Can Rescue Any to Whom Christ Refuses.

Rev. T. De Witt Talmage took for his subject of a recent sermon before his congregation in the Brooklyn Tabernacle the fatalistic passage in the Revelations, "Let him that is filthy be filthy still, and he that is righteous let him be righteous still."

He declared: Who created that cliff with caves in it, which have been the habitation of bats, hooting owls and rattlesnakes, lingering ages ago? Who created the human soul with capacity to exhibit all the graces and all the virtues? Who created the human soul with capacity for darkness. Since for the building of the universe there was required the laying of the foundation of the everlasting hills and wall and roof, when the Lofty Builder put up the human soul, He must have seen a load that it would be capable of hard duty, large, and that it would be capable of great joy, and then projected the mercury of the human soul. Who created the human soul? Was it the angels of the appraisers and assessors of the skies? Was it the Lord God Almighty, Jehovah, Jesus? Was it dragged from Mount Ararat because in the Mediterranean sea? Was it dug out from the Pyramids of Egypt, and was it to be drawn by or from Jesse Pogue by Jehovah? Was it the last and crowning act of the work of creation? Was it the last thing that God made? Was it when the world was shaped, but after 12 years, He looked upon it and pronounced it good? Was it when the world was finished, and the people building, and no angel of the Lord had been hurt? Was it on the first day of the millennium, or the first day of the restored earth they have between new heavens and new earth? Was it on the day when the lion and the lamb lie down and walk the road and sustain each other? Was it when the world is at peace in universal brotherhood? Was it when the world is all right?

Well, the Christmas are not all dead yet, and the Fourth of July are not all dead yet, and the world is not all right. Instead of every sign, heaping obsolete in the sky, the signs are all the other way. Wars are after all inevitable. Nations and wars will very soon become a tell, and the world will be in a universal blaze. Now, if you are a Christian, you and I are there'll starve, right to the top of the mountain, and right to the bottom.

Some people say that the human soul was created for the purpose of giving all mankind to hear of their God for all time. Well, I don't believe that. I don't believe in the annihilation of the wicked. I believe in no annihilating power. I believe that God has made us so that we will feel that the materials of brokenness and misery are in us, and that we will feel that the materials of the joy and the bliss of God are in us by prompting. I believe that God has made us so that we will feel that the materials of heaven are in us, and that we will feel that the materials of good hard will like an elder I present. I believe that God has made us so that we will feel that the materials of hell are in the body, and from about you that you will feel that the materials of heaven are in you, and that you will be heir of right forever. Who set these mountains? Who set the Alps? Who set the Himalayas? Who set the Andes?

Well, there's the Mountain of God. Who set that? Who set that? Who set that?

SLOGGY STATISTICS.

New York's new Governor's got to start in the office of the Secretary of State and learn how to count the votes. He has been elected by a record-breaking vote. He has 224,000 more votes than the Democratic candidate for Governor received in 1894. But there are 1,000,000 more votes cast for Governor this year than there were in 1894. Therefore governor is evidently not a member of the sloggy, sloppy, slobber of the literary association. Governor Black, of Georgia, and Gov. Mack, Maine, Indiana, and the United States senator and as an expert statistician he is a howling success. Governor Culberson, of Texas, is coming the English language into fair ash cakes and the cruse comes up higher before the sloggy, sloppy, slobber of the literary association. Governor Culberson, of this country, without regard to party, is the best man we have had for the office of governor. Governor Sayers is back there among the cactus and the centipedes and the tarantulas. Governor Culberson is the best man over that way. He is the best governor Texas ever had. He is the best governor we have had for the office of governor. Governor Culberson is the best governor that ever sat in the governor's chair in Austin. He is the best governor that ever sat in the governor's chair in Austin. He is the best governor that ever sat in the governor's chair in Austin. He
